

Muonium ToS Policy

Acceptance of Terms

The services provided Muonium are subject to the following Terms of Use. Muonium reserves the right to update these Terms of Use at its discretion and without notice or consideration. The most current version of the Terms of Use can always be viewed using the Terms of Use hypertext link. Agreement to these terms is a prerequisite for the use of any Muonium service.

Privacy

Muonium will not release any information related to an individual user, unless legally compelled to do so.

Abuse

Muonium provides its services in good faith. As part of these Terms of Use you agree not to use our services for illegal, illicit or immoral purposes. If evidence is presented that an account is in violation of the Muonium Abuse Policy, we reserve the right to terminate that account without recourse or refund to the user.

Data related to an account:

The only personal data needed is an email address. No other data are collected (IP addresses, identity...). Although, some third parties we may use can require those data.

Data storage:

All servers used for data storage are located in Estonia. Data are always stored encrypted that way we do not have the possibility to access any user file.

Data retention:

If user asks for an account deletion files will be removed immediately from our production servers. However, it can take a longer time to delete it from our backups.

Inactivity:

Muonium reserves the right to delete nor lock any accounts inactive for 6 months. Only a connection to the application is required to reset the inactivity period.

Password

You are responsible for maintaining the secrecy of your account password. As such, you are responsible for any use of your account whether or not it was authorized by you. Furthermore, you understand that an account password represents the sole means Muonium personnel have for verifying the ownership of an account.
